

Being a Safe Person

Everyone needs at least one safe person in their lives.

Someone that they can go to for a second opinion, to comfort them during tough times, to be a trusting voice, and to provide support and assistance.

What makes someone a safe person?

They take your feelings into account.

They treat others with respect.

They are considerate.

They respect consent and boundaries.

They are thoughtful and kind with their words and actions.

Why does it matter?

Having safe people in our lives helps us feel secure and valued.
